- 1 From your educator account, click Features and select Courses & Diplomas.

- 2 Click Student course plans to open the student list.

- 3 Apply filters to narrow the list to only those students you're assigned to review.

- 4 Click on a student name to view that student's course plan.

Tip: Once you're on a student profile, quickly view the next or previous student in the list by clicking their name at the top of the page.

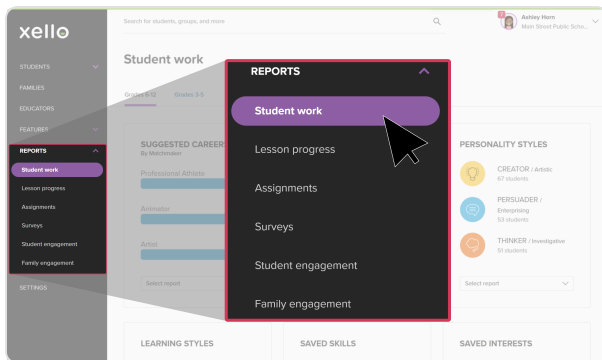

Track student course plan progress

In your educator account, run the Submission summary report to assess your students' progress in planning their courses towards graduation. With this report you'll see a breakdown of the total number (and percentage) of students in each grade by submission status. The statuses are:

- Incomplete: Students' course planners are blank or not all requirements are filled in
- Complete: All requirements are filled in on students' course plans, but are not submitted
- Submitted: Students' upcoming year's course plans have been successfully submitted
- Approved by educator: Students' course plans have been approved by an educator
- Not returning: Students who are not returning the next year
- Courses approved by parent: A parent/guardian has approved the student's course plan
- 4-yr plans approved by parent: A parent/guardian has approved the 4-year course plan
- Courses not approved by parent: A parent/guardian has not approved the course plan
- 4-yr plans not approved by parent: A parent/guardian has not approved the 4-year course plan

To run a Submission summary report:

1 From your educator account, click Reports and select Student work.

2 Scroll to the Course Planner submission card and click the Select report dropdown to choose Submission summary report.

3 Click on the status so you can see the full list of students whose course plans are in that particular state.

Action incomplete course plans

Students' course plans might be unsubmitted for several reasons, such as the student being unsure of which courses to select or receiving an alert on one of their courses that requires assistance to clear. You can help students prepare their course plans for submission through the following actions:

- Assign or recommend a course
- Exempt a course
- Remove a course
- Action critical alerts
- Approve course plans
 - Parent/guardian approval
 - Educator approval

Assign or recommend a course

As an educator, you can assign or recommend a course to a student if necessary. For example, you might:

- assign a course if it's a requirement for a student, or if the course is by administrative approval only
- recommend a course if it's suited to a student's interests and strengths

To assign or recommend a course for a student:

- 1 In the appropriate grade of the student's course plan, click the correct subject.
- 2 Find the desired course and click either Assign or Recommend.

FYI: On your student's Course Planner, a closed lock symbol will indicate the course was assigned and they cannot make changes.

An opened lock indicates the course was recommended and they can make changes.

Exempt a course

You may need to exempt a student from a course requirement. For example, to comply with a student's Individualized Education Plan (IEP).

To exempt a course:

- 1 From the student's course plan, click the subject you wish to exempt.
- 2 From the top left of the course, click Exempt requirement to remove this subject as a requirement for the student.

Remove a course

You can help your students out by removing a course from their plan for them.

To remove a course from a student's plan:

- 1 On the student's course plan, find and click the course that you wish to remove.
- 2 Next to the course, click Remove.

Action critical alerts

While filling out the course planner, you or your students may receive an alert on a chosen course. Only red alerts require action on your part.

Red alert

A red circle with a white dash through the middle means there is a conflict with the student's course plan. Clicking on the red alert will bring up a modal window with directions to resolve the alert.

Possible conflicts include:

- The student is missing a prerequisite for a course.
- The student is missing a corequisite for a course.
- A course requires approval from an educator before the student can submit.

Blue alert

A blue circle with the letter "i" in the middle provides additional information of interest about a course. Clicking on it will open a modal window with further details.

White alert

If there is a white circle with gray dash through it, a red alert has already been resolved and you can view what action was taken. The white alert also allows you to undo the action that was taken while it was a red alert.

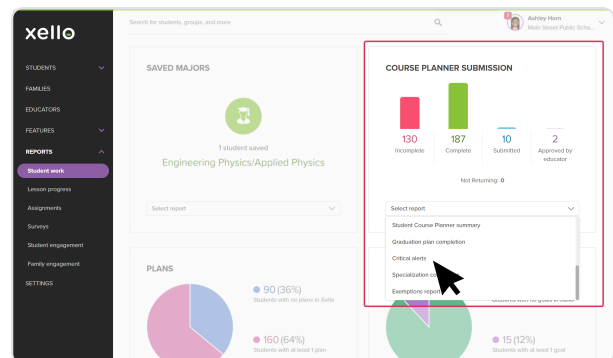

Critical alerts report

Tip: Make your job easier by running a quick report to view a list of students whose course plans have alerts that require action.

To run a Critical alerts report:

- 1 From your educator account, click Reports and select Student work.
- 2 Scroll to the Course Planner submission card and click the Select report dropdown to choose Critical alerts.

Approve course plans

Give your Xello administrators confidence that all your students' course plans are ready for course scheduling or completion standards.

Parent/guardian approval

Whether through online verification or hard-copy signatures, your school may require parent/guardian approval before you sign off on a student's course plan. If your school has enabled Xello Family, you can track which plans have been approved and who you may need to follow-up with.

Check out Course Planner parent/guardian approval to learn how to send approval requests and how to run a report on approval status. Or visit Print a student's course plan to learn how to print course plans for distribution to families.

Educator approval

You're ready to begin approving course plans now that you feel confident that your students' plans are ready with the following:

- Any alerts have been actioned
- Plans meet graduation requirements
- Plans have been reviewed by a parent/guardian
- Courses for next year are ready for scheduling

To approve a student's course plan:

- 1 On the student's profile, click the Course Planner tab.
- 2 Under the grade of the course plan submitted, click the dropdown menu and select Approved (locked).
